description

The rEVERSEDcAT stands for a perception that moves between presence and emptiness. Just as a cat disappears into the shadows and only remains recognizable through its outline or movements, this work also oscillates between visibility and dissolution. The traces in the picture could be relics of a bygone era or mere illusions that elude the eye. The result is a field of tension between what is visible and what remains hidden in the depths of the surface - a reversal of traditional pictorial concepts reminiscent of the duality of cave art.
